

ABSTRACT

A method and system for delivering power over a patient cable to a therapeutic device, in which a variable that depends on the delivered power is sensed or measured near a distal end of the patient cable, and a feedback signal
5 is generated based on the sensed or measured value. The delivered power is adjusted based at least in part on the feedback signal to compensate for power variance along the patient cable.